Attorneys Attempt To Chart Activities On Night Two Men Were Shot Fatally

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)—The defense today continued its efforts to chart the activities of Victor I. Varner the night a rival riding ranch foreman was ambushed and killed.

Attorneys for the 50-year-old riding ranch operator, on trial for first degree murder, sought to account for his time throughout the evening of last July 5 from the time he left his place near Osage Beach, not far from the place where the bodies of Edwin Boyesen, 47, and Larry Irwin, his 15-year-old helper were found.

Boysen was the foreman of a rival riding stable. The state had sought to show there was a feud between the two over an alleged fence-cutting episode.

Victor Ochterback, Lake Ozark, a woodworking operator, testified he saw Varner in front of a Lake Ozark tavern about 8:45 p.m. the night of July 5.

Gary Graham, 14, also of Lake Ozark, testified he saw Varner in front of a tavern there. Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Scheriff said Varner was in their tavern near Osage Beach that night. Scheriff said Varner was in the place about 45 minutes or an hour. Mrs. Scheriff said the riding ranch operator arrived about 9:45 p.m.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Laaker, who yesterday testified Varner was in their tavern between 7:45 and 8:15 p.m. were recalled to the stand this morning. They said Varner returned to their tavern, halfway between the Varner home and Lake Ozark, about 11 p.m.

The state had put on two witnesses who indicated the slayings had taken place about 8 p.m. July 5.

One of the first defense witnesses yesterday was Varner's attractive blonde wife. She testified she left Varner at their riding ranch at 6:30 o'clock the night of the slayings and that he came home for dinner 30 minutes or so later.

Mrs. Varner, wearing a tan leather western style skirt, appeared to be completely composed on the witness stand even though she told defense attorney Will Berry of Versailles earlier that she was nervous.

The defense tried to account for all of Varner's time the night of July 5 because the state had put two witnesses on the stand indicating the slaying took place around 8 o'clock that night.

The defense sought to tear down the circumstantial case built around a fence-cutting feud and ballistics tests which pointed to Varner's high-powered rifle as the death weapon.

Testimony of two state witnesses placed the approximate time of the slaying at about 8 o'clock. Donald Water Jr., 12, testified he saw Boysen and the boy about that hour and William S. Baker, who lived in the area, said he heard what sounded like rifle shots about that time.

The bodies of Boysen and the boy were found near Varner's riding trail July 6 by a party of riders led by Varner.

Many Stranded At Donner Lodge In High Sierras

SODA SPRINGS, Calif. (AP)—About 120 persons were stranded by snow at nearby Donner Summit Lodge in the High Sierras, and the main thing bothering the manager was the lack of electricity.

Elliott Growe said he had enough food for four or five days, a group of stranded entertainers, and a doctor.

But he did not know about the heating situation after electric power failed at 7 a.m. today. He explained that he uses electric motors to keep his oil burning furnaces going.

With the furnaces stopped, his only recourse would be two large fireplaces and it would be hard to get 120 persons close enough to them.

Some 30 stranded motorists moved into the lodge last night. Others already at the lodge were stranded skiers.

Snow, some of it falling from the lodge's roof, blocked doors on the first floor this morning and Growe said the only way out was through the second story.

Among the stranded, Growe said, were about 20 youngsters, the youngest about 6 years old. All those marooned seemed healthy, Growe said. In any event, one of the persons in the lodge is Dr. Paul Wilson from San Rafael, Calif.

City Program Of Recreation Is Discussed

Preliminary Steps Are Taken to Start Cost-Free Project

A proposed plan for city-wide recreation was discussed at a meeting held Wednesday night at the Citadel of the Salvation Army, which was presided over by Abe Silverman, chairman of the Salvation Army advisory board. It was attended by representatives of various organizations interested in such a project, as well as other interested persons.

Silverman in opening the meeting, explained this project is a city-wide recreation program and is definitely not a sponsored Salvation Army activity, and only the assistance of Lt. Elizabeth Yoder of the Salvation Army is being solicited. Lt. Yoder has had wide experience in this work.

Lt. Yoder worked in a similar program in East St. Louis. She would act as coordinator and administrator of the program with out pay, being on a salary with the Army and unable to accept pay for outside activities.

"We are most fortunate in having Lt. Yoder with us," Silverman said. "She is well qualified for this recreational work and is most willing to be of assistance to Sedalia in the program. Her experiences in East St. Louis in coordinating recreational activities and handling administration will be most valuable to us in furthering a recreational program for all Sedalia."

The meeting was to discuss and plan the initial phase of a recreational program for the entire city. After the discussion, a committee was set up to coordinate the facilities of the Sedalia Park Board and other recreational areas.

The Rev. Edward Sims was named as the chairman of this committee and he is to select its members, who will be announced later. Rev. Sims reported that as soon as he can select this committee it will be called to meet in the near future to formulate plans for the summer program.

John Vandekamp, president of the Park Board, who attended, stated he felt the program could be accomplished, but should not be depending upon a quick start. Vandekamp said of the program, "It must get off to a smooth and

Pay Hike Approved By House

It Must Go Back For Approval By The Senate

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)—A bill to raise the pay of the state comptroller from $11,000 to $15,000 a year squaked through the Missouri House today on an 80-54 vote.

It takes 79 votes to pass a bill in the House.

As the bill passed the Senate earlier, it called for only a $1,000 increase — to $12,000. So the measure as passed by the House must go back to the Senate for approval, which may be a little difficult in the final hours of the session.

Then the House got into a little hassle over whether Speaker Pro Tem Richard H. Ichord (D) of Texas County actually voted for the controversial bi-state agency bill yesterday.

Ichord had announced the bill as passing with just 79 affirmative votes. But the Journal showed today that Ichord was absent and there were only 78 votes for the bill.

Whereupon Rep. Francis O'Brien (R) of St. Louis insisted the bill was dead. And Ichord produced the original voting record, showing he voted for the bill's passage. The mistake was made either by a clerk or the printer, he said.

So the House denied O'Brien's objection on a 13-103 vote.

Yesterday the House refused to give Kansas City officials the right to increase property taxes as a solution to the city's financial problems.

The House defeated, 28-62, a bill which would have raised the city's maximum property tax from $1.50 to $1.70 on each $100 valuation.

Opponents said the first thing to be done is a complete re-assessment job, so valuations of property for tax purposes will be equalized. Then the city should be a little more economical and fit its spending to its income.

Passed and sent to the governor was a much-changed bill to extend the powers of the Bi-State Development Agency, set up by Missouri and Illinois to attract industry and commerce to the St. Louis metropolitan area.

Because of the changes, the Illinois legislature will be asked next year to re-enact its bi-state law so it will fit the new Missouri act.

The House held its second secret session last night to re-instruct its delegation to the Joint Committee on Appropriations. Rep. Warren E. Hearnes (D) of Mississippi County, majority floor leader, said the committee was told by House vote how to stand on a half dozen minor appropriations.

But the closed meeting also served to stir up rancor among some House members against the Senate—a usual situation near the close of any legislative session here.

Sends To Senate

House Passes Controversial Anti-Recession Highway Bill

Bulletin

WASHINGTON (AP)—Congress sped to President Eisenhower today an anti-recession bill designed to pump an additional $1,800,000,000 into highway building.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House passed and sent to the Senate a compromise $1,800,000,000 anti-recession highway construction bill. The House refused on a roll call vote to send the bill back to a Senate-House conference to change its provisions.

The House then proceeded to pass the bill with its controversial anti-billboard provision.

The measure is a compromise of separate bills already passed in different form by the two branches of Congress.

House rejection of the compromise would have precluded further action on the measure until April 14, when the Congressional Easter recess starting later today ends.

Senate passage was considered certain, because the conferees on Tuesday largely accepted the Senate provisions.

Eisenhower signed the session's first antirecession bill, a $1,850,000,000 housing measure, Tuesday. Highway bill opposition in the House appeared to center on the provision for regulation of billboards along the 41,000-mile network of expressways now being built — the interstate system.

One House member told a reporter, "I've never seen any lobbying like this since the Volstead Act. On one side you have the garden clubs, on the other the outdoor advertising industry."

The billboard provision would give incentives to the states to control advertising signs along the interstate system. For signing agreements to regulate billboards, they would be paid a bonus of one half of 1 per cent of the cost of the interstate segment covered by the agreement. This would be in addition to the 90 per cent of the cost already borne by the federal government.

Senate Fights Over Search, Seizure Bill

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)—The Missouri Senate wrangled until midnight last night then passed a House version of the controversial bill to give the Highway Patrol search and seizure powers.

The bill now goes to Gov. James T. Blair, who recommended it and lobbied for it on the Senate floor during the two and a half hour fight last night.

The vote accepting the house version was 20-8. Then it was passed 21-7.

In its final form, the measure gives troopers the right to take dangerous weapons from persons being arrested and grants search and seizure power on public highways—interpreted by the senators to mean any road or street in the state.

It also carries an order for instruction of patrolmen in use of the law so citizens will not be unreasonably bothered in travelling across the state.

Sen. Albert M. Spradling (D) of Cape Girardeau, the former FBI agent who handled the measure, called it "a very fine bill." He said it is essential to arm the patrol with the same powers other law officers have to combat crime.

Opponents charged the bill was the first step in setting up a state police system. Sen. Harry Hatcher (R) of Granby predicted it would permit an over zealous governor in the future to set up a police state.

The Senate also took a long time yesterday in passing a bill affecting voter registration in cities over 10,000. The House adopted Senate changes last night, sending the measure to the governor.

In its final form the measure carried an amendment by Sen. Jack S. Curtis (R) of Springfield. He said it would protect both cities like Jefferson City and Cape Girardeau, which already have permanent registration systems, and Joplin and Columbia, which have recently conducted re-registration campaigns.

Under his proposal, Curtis said it would be unnecessary for Joplin and Columbia officials to keep two sets of poll books—one of the complaints they made at earlier hearings.

Would Give Secretary Full Power

Eisenhower Proposal Would Make Staff Chiefs His Aides

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower today sent Congress a six-point Pentagon reorganization plan. He said it would give the secretary of defense authority for truly unified military operations.

In a 7,000-word special message Eisenhower said: "We must remove all doubts as to the full authority of the secretary of defense."

Eisenhower said that separate ground, sea and air warfare is gone forever.

He proposed that the Joint Chiefs of Staff be continued, but said that in the future they should serve as a staff assisting the secretary of defense in his exercise of direction over unified commands.

Strategic and tactical planning must be completely unified, combat forces organized into unified commands, each equipped with the most efficient weapons system that science can develop, singly led and prepared to fight as one, regardless of service," the message said.

Even before the message reached Congress, there had been doubts voiced by some influential legislators as to whether the secretary of defense should have greatly increased power.

Eisenhower's program would strip the civilian heads of the Army, Navy and Air Force of direct authority over military operations. In effect, they would be left as merely executive agents.

Eisenhower also proposed—despite opposition in Congress—that in the future all appropriations for the three services be earmarked for handling by the secretary of defense, instead of being channeled by Congress to the three services.

Eisenhower suggested that re-structure go into effect July 1, 1959.

The message set forth these main points:

1. "We must organize our fighting forces into operational commands that are truly unified, each assigned a mission in full accord with our over-all military objectives."

2. "We must clear command channels so that orders will proceed directly to unified commands from the commander in chief and the secretary of defense."

3. "We must strengthen the military staff in the office of the secretary of defense in order to provide the commander in chief and the secretary with the professional assistance they need for strategic planning and for operational direction of unified commands."

It was under this point that Eisenhower said that in the future the Joint Chiefs of Staff would have the role of assisting the secretary of defense in his direction over unified command.

A presidential aide, Bryce Harlow, said in reply to questions at a news conference that this is not a move toward creation of a general staff such as that in the old German military establishment.

4. "We must continue the three military departments as agencies within the Department of Defense to administer a wide range of functions."

Seized After Theft Of Nine Light Poles

CHICAGO, Ill. (AP)—Ray Sherman has police in the dark as to just how he put nine long light poles on his truck.

Sherman, 28, was seized by detectives yesterday on charge of stealing the nine city street lighting poles which were found in his truck.

Sherman told the detectives he worked for the city picking up the old poles but they said he couldn't produce identification and he was jailed.

The detectives said they couldn't figure out how Sherman got the poles on the truck. They are 12 feet long, made of cast iron, and weigh 200 pounds each.

Four city workers with a crane moved the poles from Sherman's truck. Asked how he loaded them alone, Sherman just flexed his muscles and grinned.

Syracuse School Robbery Attempted

An attempted robbery at the Syracuse Elementary School proved unsuccessful. Jim Salmons, the custodian, discovered the incident early this morning. Entrance was gained through the back door of the building. The principal's office was entered and an attempt to break into the safe failed, but the combination to the safe was found. The burglars also tried to chisel into a wall safe but this, too, ended in failure.

Morgan County Sheriff, J. T. Hull, and Patrolman Sizian are investigating.

Melvin Gulick is the school principal.

New Mayor Presented At Lions Meeting

Abe Silverman, a member of the Lions Club, was introduced officially to the club as Sedalia's new mayor, by one of his opponents, A. W. Haller, at the regular meeting Wednesday noon at the Bothwell Hotel.

Another successful candidate for city office, Paul Hausman, the new councilman from the first ward, was introduced by President A. B. Warren.

During the regular meeting Haller took the floor and said: "I feel that under the circumstances since Silverman got most of the votes in the election Tuesday, I should be permitted to have the last word."

"Able Abe" is much more "able" than he was given credit for being. Regardless of how anyone of us voted Tuesday, I feel that every Lion should be proud to have a member of the club as our mayor. Every one of us should be behind him 100 percent."

He then introduced Silverman to his club, which stood in unison.

President Warren introduced Hausman as "another member of our club who was likewise successful in his effort to seek office."

Thomas Keating, a member of the Civil Defense Board, was introduced as a guest of President Warren, who also announced his successful bid for the office of city magistrate.

Pegee Homan, Civil Defense director for Pettis County, was introduced by Ray Baker, program chairman. She outlined the need for an active civil defense plan within the county and explained how she planned to form it. She said:

"I'm sure that each of you is aware of the need for civil defense interest and workers. If every person in Pettis County could but know what could actually happen to us in less than an hour, I'm sure that everyone would take the needed interest. As I see it now, our main problem is education."

"I am in the process of forming a civil defense advisory board and council, to be made up of all the groups in the county. Civic clubs, PTA's, church groups and other interested parties may take part. So you see we will have a cross section represented on the council."

She then named C. F. Scotten, Bill Padgett, Maurice Hogan, Tom Keating, Dr. A. J. Campbell and Capt. McCulley as present board members.

Other guests were the Rev. Richard Spellman, First Christian Church, of President Warren; Homer Stanfield and Dick Machoney, both of Booneville, guests of Ray Brueckner; and visiting Lion John Talbot, Carrollton, who recently moved to Sedalia.

workable start. It can't be something we jump into and have come to a quick end."

Later it was explained to the group that before L. Yoder could take on this activity she must first have the approval of the St. Louis office of the Salvation Army. Her work, like that of the others, will be strictly on a volunteer basis.

It was brought out that many volunteer workers throughout the city will be necessary. It was also brought out the program would be a starter for city-wide recreation until some kind of arrangements could be made to obtain funds to secure a full-time director as in other cities.

Among those who attended were L. R. Black, superintendent of parks; George Ray, of Kiwanis; Ralph Hamlin, Little League; George Thompson, of Horace Mann School, who is principal and coach there; Gerald Cecil, Optometrist Club; and Mrs. Mary Studer, a member of the school board but attending only as an interested party and not representing the board. Other interested parties there were Mrs. Cline Cain, Mrs. Embree Baldwin, Mrs. Dolly Bailey, and Capt. M. A. Weber, of the Salvation Army.

Former FCC Member Asked To Testify

WASHINGTON — House investigators, told yesterday that the White House has had only routine contacts with the FCC, today called a woman Democrat who formerly served on the Federal Communications Commission.

Mrs. Frieda Henock Simon, an FCC member from 1948-1955, was listed as the final witness in a House subcommittee's current probe of alleged efforts to influence the commission. More hearings on the FCC and other federal regulatory agencies are expected later.

For nearly two months, the subcommittee has been looking into allegations of improper pressures and charges that FCC commissioners have accepted favors from the broadcasting industry. The commissioners have denied any wrongdoing.

Testifying yesterday, former FCC Chairman George C. McConaughy of Columbus, Ohio, was asked if there had been "a great deal of contact" between White House officials and himself, other than routine referral of letters.

"That has been about it — other than security matters," said McConaughy, a Republican lawyer who served on the FCC from 1954 until last year.

He said Secretary of Commerce Weeks had nothing to do with the award of a license for Boston's TV Channel 5. Told of reports that Weeks had intervened in the case, McConaughy said he knew nothing of any such intervention by the secretary, who hails from Massachusetts.

Weeks never talked to him about the Boston case "in any manner whatsoever," McConaughy said.

However, the former FCC chairman said two rival applicants for the Boston channel discussed the case with him before the FCC awarded the license to a subsidiary of the Boston Herald-Traveler Corp. a year ago.

McConaughy also said several representatives of the Boston Globe called him and "just read the riot act to me for even considering voting for the Traveler." The Globe was not an applicant for the channel, but objected to any award of the license to the Herald-Traveler newspaper subsidiary.

Bill Lets Women Sit In House of Lords

LONDON — A bill permitting women to sit in the House of Lords for the first time won final parliamentary approval last night. Queen Elizabeth II will sign it into law soon.

The bill permits the monarch to appoint men and women to the upper house with special titles which cannot be passed on to heirs. The House of Lords is now composed of hereditary seats for men only, plus places for churchmen of the established Church of England.

The Labor party opposed the bill on the ground it did not insure more Laborites in the predominantly Conservative upper house.

First Liberation Day....

History's first liberation day will be celebrated by Jews throughout the world, beginning at sunset, Friday, April 4.

The day, of course, is now known as the Festival of Passover and actual observance lasts for a week among liberal Jews and eight days among the more traditionalists.

Commemorating the emancipation of the ancient Israelites, under the leadership of Moses, from Egyptian slavery, Passover is marked by special worship services stressing the theme of human freedom and the sacrifice of human bondage.

The note of liberty is also struck in a unique religious service which takes place around the table in homes and synagogues. Called the Seder (Order of service), the rite involves a recital of the Biblical story of the Exodus and the explanation of the meaning of symbolical foods especially served on the occasion.

The principal Passover food is matzah, unleavened bread, known as the bread of affliction. It is eaten to remind the worshipper of the meagerness of the fare of underprivileged and is meant to induce a desire to alleviate human distress. Similarly, bitter herbs are eaten at the Seder as a reminder of the bitterness of slavery. The Seder wine is emblematic of the sweetness which devotees of religion should seek to spread among their fellow men.

The "last supper" of the New Testament was a Seder and the Passover matzah and wine were the precursors of the communion wafer and wine.

In a message from Bombay, India, where he is in the course of a world tour one of the leaders of American Judaism, Dr. Maurice N. Eisenrath, president of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations declared: "Let us always remember that redemption from Egyptian slavery required courage, sacrifice and the outlay of energy on the part of Moses and his followers. It did not come automatically. Similarly today, freedom will come only if men and women everywhere put to the highest use the impulse for liberty implanted within them by Almighty God."

A characteristic Passover supplication recited in synagogues which use the Union Prayerbook follows:

"O God, imbue us with courage to guard our heritage of freedom above all material goods and to preserve it for others so that all men shall dwell together in safety and none shall make them afraid."

For traditionalists, the first two days of the holiday (Saturday and Sunday, April 5 and 6) are holidays as well as the seventh and eighth days (April 11 and 12); for liberal Jews, it is the first and seventh (April 5 and April 11). Most Jewish children absent themselves from public school classes on these days.

U. S. Let Russia Get Credit On Test Ban

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—U.S. experts on public opinion admit privately that Moscow scored the No. 1 propaganda victory of the year with the announcement of a unilateral ban of H-bomb tests. It almost equals the No. 1 victory of last year—launching the Sputnik.

The Moscow announcement, coming on top of the steady drumbeat of Bulganin notes urging a summit conference and the banning of missile bases in Europe, more than ever has pictured Russia as the disciple of peace.

The real inside story of how badly the United States muffed the ball on banning H-bomb tests is known only to a few people. As early as Sept. 11, 1956, President Eisenhower and the National Security Council had decided to propose more or less what Moscow proposed this week—a ban on H-bomb tests.

What actually happened at the Sept. 11, 1956 meeting was that Secretary of State Dulles urged a moratorium on the nuclear tests, pointing out that it would win friends for us abroad, would give us the diplomatic initiative, would help convince the world that we are more peace-loving than Moscow.

Harold Stassen immediately agreed with Dulles. Secretary of Defense Wilson and Adm. Lewis Strauss, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, did not. They warned that Russia might violate any agreement, would test small atomic weapons. They admitted we could detect all large explosions.

In the final voting, Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey concurred with Dulles, and the President finally did, too. As is customary in National Security Council meetings, the decision was made unanimously. Though final details were to be worked out later, the tentative plan was to ask Russia to join in suspending H-bomb tests for one year as a "peace experiment." This was to be coupled with a "moral agreement" to outlaw the intercontinental ballistic missile in the same manner poison gas has been outlawed.

Ike Reverses Ike

Approximately one week later, Ike's political advisers warned that Adlai Stevenson had made speeches as early as April, 1956, proposing the end of H-bomb tests, and that he had made another full-dress proposal in early September. The advisers urged that it would be a political mistake to play into Stevenson's hands by going ahead with the Security Council's decision of September 11.

Eisenhower then reversed himself. On September 19 he came out with a vigorous statement attacking Stevenson's H-bomb proposal as "a theatrical gesture." In speech after speech following this, Eisenhower attacked the Stevenson proposal as political grandstanding. He made it clear he didn't consider Stevenson qualified to discuss atomic energy.

On October 26, the President stormed into the National Security Council meeting and angrily lectured them about leaks. He said he had heard that the September 11 decision regarding H-bomb tests had become known to people outside the council, and as a result he was ordering a full investigation.

On October 29, this column queried the White House as to whether the Security Council had made a decision and then reversed itself. The reply was "no comment." A day or two later, four Democratic senators made the same inquiry and got a categorical denial.

Health Survey Suspended
Meanwhile, the White House was so embarrassed over Stevenson's proposal to ban nuclear tests that it even played politics with the public health service's survey of radioactivity. Suddenly on Sept. 26, 1956, and without explanation, the survey was canceled.

Ike's blast at Stevenson's proposal had been made on September 19. One week later, assistant surgeon general Otis L. Anderson wrote state health officials:

"Field sampling operations in connection with radiation surveillance network will terminate at the close of business Thursday, September 27, 1956."

Twenty-four hours is an extremely abrupt cancellation notice. Many state officials didn't receive the notice before September 27. Anderson was obviously in a hurry. The date of October 1 was scratched out and September 26 typed in. The termination date of September 27 was also typed in.

Previous surveys showed increases of radioactivity as high as 15 to 25 times normal by some monitoring stations. An increase of 10 times normal, according to statements by the Atomic Energy Commission, was considered the alarm point.

Stevenson had proposed the end of H-bomb tests because, he said, the air was becoming dangerously contaminated with radioactive fallout. This was denied by Atomic Energy Chairman Strauss. The surveys were canceled.

That is the story of how the administration put politics ahead of world peace and the nation's health, thereby permitting Russia to score a great propaganda victory by proposing this week what Stevenson proposed publicly and Eisenhower agreed to privately—and then reversed himself—one year and a half ago.

'On Wisconsin'

"On Wisconsin" to the mothball fleet! The famed battleship serves no longer the Stars and Stripes for she fought so valiantly. A sentimental crew struck her colors and relegated her to the mothball fleet in Bayonne, N.J.

This historic occasion marked the end of an era in naval history, as the U.S. Navy is now without a battleship on the seas for the first time since 1895.

The Wisconsin, known as the "king of battleships," like the rest of the ships in her class, has given way to a "new king," the aircraft carrier.

The Wisconsin was commissioned two years before Pearl Harbor. She was sent to join the Pacific Fleet and saw action against Leyte, Luzon, Formosa, Hong Kong, Indo-China, Iwo Jima, Okinawa and Japan. She was in Tokyo Bay the day the Japanese surrendered on board her sister ship, the Missouri.

Having won her laurels, the Wisconsin was decommissioned in 1948, only to be reactivated in 1951 to become the flagship for the Commander of the Seventh Fleet to aid in the Korean conflict. In those waters she received her first enemy hit, but the powerful ship withstood the battery barrage from the shore.

Time Rolls Back 25 Years With Baruch

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bernard M. Baruch, tall and still well-built at 87, gave his advice this week on the recession.

He was talking to the Senate Finance Committee. Listening to him was like watching time roll back a quarter century. On Feb. 13, 1933, he gave his advice to this same committee on how to handle the depression.

What he said 25 years ago sounded strangely like what he was saying now. His advice was disregarded then. It may be disregarded now. Although he has been an adviser to every president since Wilson, his advice has often been ignored.

In 1933 — with 12 million people jobless just a month before Franklin D. Roosevelt became president — Baruch was warning against the dangers of inflation and advising: "To get people back to work... we must balance the budget."

His theme then: "Reduction in public expense is indispensable to recovery."

But when Roosevelt took office

he did just the opposite from what Baruch suggested: he really unbalanced the budget with relief spending and ushered in a new concept of willingness to spend more money than the government takes in revenue to get the economy back on its feet.

This week Baruch — ignoring any change in government philosophy — went back to his theme of 25 years ago.

He put his finger on inflation as the "biggest single peril to our economic health," rejected deficit spending as a solution to the present recession, opposed a tax cut, and even advocated a tax increase to keep the budget balanced if Congress votes big new spending programs.

But both the Eisenhower administration and the Democrats in Congress have talked of the likelihood of a tax cut if the recession gets much worse.

A tax increase would take a sharp bite out of Baruch's income, since he's a millionaire, but he's also a man who, in his long record of service to the government, never took a dime of salary or expense and even spent his own money.

It's been estimated that he's spent more than a million dollars of his own money for government work.

When he read from his prepared paper, typed with oversized letters, Baruch put on a pair of glasses over those he was already wearing. He also wears a hearing aid that can be tuned up or off, as he pleases.

Baruch looks just as self-assured — and is just as gracious — as he was during World War II days when he was studying the rubber shortage for President Roosevelt.

Although he had a genius for making money on the stock market — he was a millionaire at 30 — his vision in other things wasn't always so acute. For example: In 1931, with the depression getting worse by the minute, he made a speech in which he said he could see prosperity returning.

Drugs Play Important Role In Treatment of Gout

By EDWIN P. JORDAN, M.D.
Gout is reported as a diagnosis in about five out of 100 patients attending clinics devoted to arthritis and related diseases.

Recently a letter came from V. D., who said, "Many years ago most doctors claimed gout was caused by too much rich food and/or alcoholic beverages. In your opinion is such the case? Is gout ever fatal and is there a known cure?"

The exact cause of gout is still poorly understood. It appears to run to a considerable degree in families and is much more common in men than in women. It is associated with a disturbance in the chemistry of the body in which substances known as purines accumulate.

There is considerable debate on the part played by foods and alcoholic beverages, but apparently some foods, particularly those rich in purines, can bring on an acute attack of the disease. Whether this is true also of alcoholic beverages is more debatable.

Gout by itself appears to be rarely, if ever, fatal.

The most characteristic feature of an acute attack of gout is the sudden appearance of terrific pain at the base of one of the big toes. The pain is generally followed by swelling and extreme tenderness and has been described as feeling as though someone were trying to pry the joint apart with a red hot poker.

Actually, other joints can be involved, even early in the disease. One of the first patients I ever saw with gout had swelling and pain in the knee with nothing at all in the big toe.

An acute attack of gout can generally be relieved rather rapidly by drugs, particularly one known as colchicine.

After relief the problem becomes one of preventing recurrent attacks. This is generally attempted by dietary measures and exclusion of those foods containing large amounts of purines. Drug treatment is also commonly advised.

There is some difference of opinion on diet, however, and I am told that in some communities victims of gout frequently compare notes with one another and do not always have the same experiences with dietary measures.

In addition to acute gout there is a chronic variety which is called gouty arthritis.

In this stage of the disease there are deposits of chemical crystals known as urates in various parts of the body. They are particularly common in the lobes of the ears and in and near some of the joints. They can reach enormous size and cause a good deal of destruction to the joint tissues.

Fortunately, gouty arthritis is less common than acute gout.

The objective of treatment is to try to prevent the development of gouty arthritis by drugs, of which there are now several kinds available, and by the prevention of attacks of acute gout.

In some cases of gouty arthritis surgery has definite value and involves the cutting out of the crystal deposits.

The increased interest of the last few years in gout has already brought improvement in its management and understanding.

Russia Tries Again to Win World, Ending Bomb Tests

By JOSEPH A. DEAR
Of Our Washington Bureau
WASHINGTON — United States has suffered a crushing defeat in the battle for the minds of men.

Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko's assertion that Russia is unilaterally suspending its nuclear weapons testing program can be described as nothing less.

Travelling Americans almost always are unpleasantly surprised when they find out first hand how other people react to our stand on the issue of testing H-bombs and A-bombs. In our hearts we are convinced that our position is correct, sensible, and moral. And if we have any misgivings, we dismiss them on the theory that testing actually is not very dangerous.

No such flattering opinion of us is held by others. In their eyes we are an immoral and irresponsible giant. The thinking of many intellectuals in Europe and Asia is conditioned in part by the fact that we, and we alone, have actually employed atomic weapons in war.

As a result of one of our tests in the Pacific, the entire crew of a Japanese fishing boat, which was more than 80 miles from the explosion center, was sickened. That did the trick. It seemed our testing program might in time prove as dangerous to humanity as an atomic war.

Of course, this was an exaggerated estimate of the situation. But it must be remembered that many scientists of distinction warned that the testing program was dangerous.

Dr. Linus Pauling, for example, says the tests that have been held have doomed about one million people to slow death from bone cancer, leukemia, and the like.

One million people, who but for the tests, would live.

The very thought of atomic warfare is chilling enough. The idea that innocent humans, miles from test centers, should forfeit their lives to prepare for a war no one wants in the first place is simply repulsive.

That explains the reason for hostile world opinion. It is unthinkable opinion in the sense that it does not attempt to balance the fall-out danger against the danger of Communist aggression. But for all that the reaction of the world has been negative, and the leaders of the Eisenhower administration know it.

That's why this crushing defeat is so tragic. It is a defeat the United States inflicted upon itself. There is considerable evidence that Ike was on the point of announcing a modification of the testing program during the 1956 presidential campaign.

But candidate Stevenson beat Ike to the punch. And thereupon the issue was lost to domestic politics. The Administration would not even renounce the testing of huge weapons that created dangerous radioactive fall-out.

Instead, an effort was made to produce "clean" bombs. And the test suspension proposal was made part of the disarmament package we attempted to negotiate with Russia.

The Russian announcement now, even if it is a phony, will thus have tremendous impact and influence. And the announcement will enhance Russia's prestige. By voluntarily abandoning the testing programs, the Russians appear stronger and more confident than we. Otherwise, the world will ask, how could they have given up testing?

Ruth Millett Says

Consideration, Praise; Two of Love's Best Gifts

These small "gifts" to your wife don't cost a cent, yet they are sure to be appreciated:

Call her up occasionally from the office for no other reason than just to talk.

On an evening when she seems rushed or tired, take a job away from her and send her off to read the evening paper while you wrestle with Junior's bath or the dinner dishes.

Keep your eyes open so that you notice when she gets a new hairdo or is wearing a new dress. If she has to ask you how you like it, your compliment won't mean nearly so much as when you don't have to be prodded.

Talk over with her the business problem that is bothering you, instead of clamping up and worrying alone. She may not be able to offer you any helpful advice (though she might surprise you with an idea you hadn't thought of), but she will be pleased you want to discuss with her.

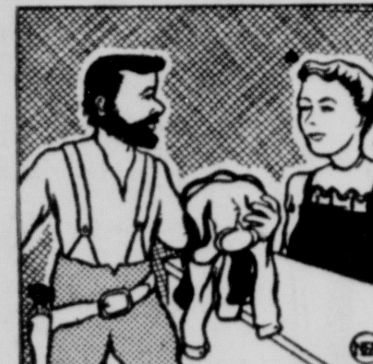

Dress carefully when you take her out. It's a compliment to a wife for her husband to look his best when he is her escort.

When you realize you are going to have to go somewhere when you would rather stay at home, go without a fuss. A wife who has to drag her husband to a party can't arrive in a party mood herself.

Be lavish in your compliments. It's no more trouble to tell a woman she looks beautiful than to tell her she looks nice. But it certainly makes a difference to a woman whether or not a compliment is extravagant or cautious.

Give her a build-up to others. The wife who overhears her husband saying something nice about her to someone else is as happy as the person who receives an unexpected gift.

Matter of FACT

The first commercial laundry in the United States was begun for the laundering of detachable collars. It is said that the laundry industry came into being because of the needs of the forty-niners during the gold rush days of California. At first all the work was done by hand. Later a 12-shirt washing machine was built. A 10-horsepower donkey engine furnished power.

Sedalia Man Serves MoPac For 35 Years

Harry N. McMullin, 1723 South Quincy, has retired from the Missouri Pacific Railroad Lines after 35 years of service. McMullin spent a year and a half with the Missouri-Kansas-Texas railroad at Parsons and Denison, Tex., before returning to Sedalia to go with the Missouri Pacific, on April 10, 1923.

At the local shops he worked as a sheet metal worker until July 9, 1927, when he went on sick leave because of a heart condition. Because of his health he has applied for his retirement.

He was an active worker in the Booster Club of the railroad, president of the Benefit Association of Railway Employees for a number of years. In 1933 he was made a special organizer for the A.F.L. Sheet Metal Workers under the supervision of Louis M. Winkline out of Washington, D. C., for this district. He was very active in Local No. 79 of Sedalia, and served the local as secretary and treasurer, was also shop steward for a number of years. McMullin, through his union connections, was active in the Federated Shop Crafts and the Federation of Labor in Sedalia, as well as for the Missouri Pacific Shop Federation.

Since his illness, he has retired from all of these activities, which also included work as part-time insurance agent for the National Fidelity Life Insurance Co. of Kansas City.

In 1931 he went with the Cal Rodgers Pontiac Co. as a part-time salesman, but recently, since leaving his shop activities, he has become a regular car salesman for the firm.

Governor James T. Blair Jr. has issued a proclamation in which he calls upon all Christian people of Missouri to observe Good Friday, April 4, by devoting a portion of that day to reverent and public observance.

Good Friday, the day commemorating the death of Christ on the Cross, is the most solemn of all days of Holy Week, the Governor points out, and the Crucifixion is the fundamental basis of the faith of all Christians, regardless of denomination. Through his proclamation he asks the Christian people of the state to lay aside material things on this day to pay homage to the God who created us and the Saviour who redeemed us.

Smith-Cotton Loses

Marshall Owls Win
Duel Track Contest

The Smith-Cotton varsity track and field squad lost a dual track meet to the Marshall Owls, 76½-41½, on the Marshall field Tuesday afternoon. However, the B Tigers won their meet 62-56.

Coast Forrest Arnall's young varsity squad, composed of sophomore and juniors with the exception of Perry Fairfax, a senior, placed first in five events while the Marshall thinclops topped nine first places. The Owls also placed second in eight events to the Tigers' five, and third in seven events while Smith-Cotton placed third in four. The teams tied for third in the high jump.

Marshall's Abney was individual high scorer with three first places good for 15 points. He won the 100-yard dash in :10.5, the 180-yard high hurdles in :22.8, and the 220-yard dash in :23.9.

Fairfax and Funnell led Smith-Cotton with six points each. Fairfax won the shotput with a toss of 47 feet 9 inches, and placed third in the discus throw. Funnell, a sophomore, was second in the 120-yard high hurdles with a time of :18.2, and also took second in the 180-yard low hurdles with a time of :22.9.

In the "B" meet Gilpin led the Tigers in scoring with 8 points by placing first in the 440-yard dash with a time of :56.8 and placing second in the 100-yard dash with a time of :11.3. Marshall's Bear won the event, also with a time of :11.3, but was awarded the victory.

Heffron was individual high scorer in the "B" meet with two first places good for ten points. He won the 120-yard high hurdles in 20 seconds flat and the 180-yard low hurdles in :25.7.

Richard Wertz, a sophomore with excellent potential, was injured before the meet began when he fractured his wrist while warming up for the pole vault. His arm was put in a cast at Bothwell Hospital.

The Tigers' next cinder competition will be on Tuesday, April 8, when the Bengals host the California Pintos and Warrensburg Public High in a triangular meet at Jennie Jaynes Memorial Stadium. The field events begin at 3:30 p.m. and running events get under way at 4 o'clock.

Will Permit
Hit Records
In New Parks

NEW YORK (AP)—Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick today shrugged off a suggestion that he refuse to allow any batting records which may be set in the stop-gap Los Angeles and San Francisco ball parks this season.

"I don't see how you can outlaw any park where major league ball is played," he said, "but I don't think the home run is going to be that much of a problem in either park anyway."

A national sports magazine said such players as Willie Mays of the San Francisco Giants and Duke Snider of the Los Angeles Dodgers each would have chances of playing 88 games in the two parks and suggested Frick take steps to prevent a "joke home-run record."

"I haven't seen the Coliseum (where the Dodgers will play their home games until a park is built)," Frick admitted, "but I don't think it will be any more of a home run haven than was the Polo Grounds, for instance."

"Most of the home run hitters have their best power to right and left center or dead-away center anyway."

The Coliseum layout offers 440 feet to dead center, 425-430 to left center and 390-420 to right center. Seals Stadium, where the Giants will play, measures 355 feet down either line, 375 to left and right-center and about 410 or so to dead center.

Don Curtis

Curtis Risks
Mat Title
Here Tuesday

In his first defense of the newly won Missouri State Heavyweight Title, popular Don Curtis will be running into the toughest possible competition Tuesday. Curtis came out on top in the elimination tournament held two weeks ago at the armory in a star-studded competition that saw him crowned state champion.

Although Krupp was also an entry in the tournament, the powerful German Oak, had won only one match. In his anxiety to eliminate his second round opponent, who was Curtis, the Dutchman jumped the bell and pummeled Curtis from pillar to post and was disqualified by referee Bobby Bruns.

Krupp immediately filed a protest over the disqualification and so loud and long were his howls that promoter Gust Karras finally agreed to the match with the champion's permission. Curtis, when presented the trophy stated to the sellout crowd his promise to defend his title against all-comers.

He could not very well side step the rugged German from Munich, since the German did issue the first challenge and did have a solid reason for the challenge.

Krupp has gone undefeated since his invasion of the Middle western arenas and Curtis may have more than one reason to regret his quick decision in accepting the challenge. The match will have a one hour time limit and be for the best two out of three falls. This bout will be under championship rules.

Three other matches complete the card, with a tag team match holding the semifinal position and featuring Sonny Myers and Thor Hagen on one team, opposing Big Lee Henning and Rip Hawk. This match will have a 45 minute time limit and have the best two out of three falls to win clause.

In the one fall matches, Sonny Myers meets Big Lee Henning and opening the action for the night Rip Hawk will try to pin the broad shoulders of Thor Hagen, who is returning to the local mat wars from a successful tour of his home state of Minnesota.

Ken Venturi
New Hotshot
In Masters

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP)—Ken Venturi is a young man with a mission in the Masters Golf Tournament, but the question is: Is he too eager?

"That is the danger," Byron Nelson, Ken's long-time tutor, said today, prior to the first-round tee-off.

"Venturi is playing beautifully. He is hitting the ball like a rifle shot. He is on fire with determination."

"I only hope he is not too intense. I don't think he is. But he is dying to win this tournament."

Winning the Masters title has been a driving ambition of the good-looking, 26-year-old San Franciscan since he blew it with a last-round 80 two years ago, when Jack Burke Jr. won.

"I aged 20 years in those four hours," Venturi said. "Ever since that day every shot I have made has been aimed at redeeming myself."

Venturi and Sam Snead have been tabbed cotermines at 4-1 in an unofficial "book" which has spread over the 6,980-yard Augusta National course.

Venturi is the new hotshot of the rugged professional tour, leading money winner, victor in three winter tournaments and one of the most respected craftsmen among the pros themselves.

Snead is the ageless wonder from the Virginia Hills, at 46 still a superb athlete with a flawless swing who drives the ball like a cannon blast. He has won more golf tournaments and probably more money than any man alive but he is still followed by the ghost of dubbed putts and missed opportunities.

The starting field numbers 86 and includes most of the golf masters of the world. Seven countries in addition to the United States are represented.

Celtic Chance
Hinges On
Russell Injury

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Boston's chances in the National Basketball Assn. championship playoffs will rest on how quickly Bill Russell can recover from an ankle injury.

The 6-10 Russell injured his ankle last night in the third game of the series between Boston's Celtics and the St. Louis Hawks. St. Louis won the game 111-108.

Russell was removed from the game and taken to Jewish Hospital. X-rays showed his ankle was badly sprained.

Dr. Stan London said, "we'll start working on it first thing in the morning."

He said Russell "might be ready for Saturday and probably will be in the game" April 9 at Boston.

Russell hurt the ankle when he came down on it hard in the third quarter.

Last night's game, which put the Hawks ahead 2-1 in the best of seven series, was as tough a battle as the first one. The first game was won by St. Louis 104-102. Last Sunday the Celtics won 136-112.

Hawk star Bob Pettit was the game's high scorer with 32 points. Last night's game was shown on closed circuit television at Kiel Opera House which adjoins the auditorium in which the game was played. Some 1,620 persons paid $2 a seat to see the action.

The next game will be played here Saturday night and then the Celtics and Hawks will meet in Boston April 9. If another game is needed it will be played April 12 here and if a seventh game is necessary the teams will travel back to Boston. Date for a seventh game hasn't been determined.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—Gen. Mgr. Bing Devine of the St. Louis Cardinals was cautiously optimistic yesterday after five weeks of training in Florida in which the Red Birds won 14 of 22 exhibition games.

"I think our team has improved even if we do have problems," he said.

Spoonbill Snagging Season
Starts With Spawning Run

"Spoonbills are running!" Each spring the word spreads rapidly and fishermen from all parts of the state, and many from other states, grab their gear and head for the Osage River—congregating below Bagnell Dam, and from Warsaw near the headwaters of Lake of the Ozarks upstream along the Osage to Osceola in St. Clair County.

As the spoonbills—or paddlefish—begin their spawning run this year a three-man research team from the Missouri Conservation Commission headed for the Osage with the anglers.

The spoonbill looks like a throw-back to prehistoric times, with its long, flat snout. It's a big fish—with 50-pounders not uncommon. However, the average along the Osage appears to run about 30 pounds, according to Commission fishery biologists. It feeds on plankton and other micro-organisms so bait isn't effective and the angler has to get his spoonbill by snagging while the spawning run is going on. The Wildlife Code permits snagging between March 15 and May 15, with a daily limit of two spoonbill and a possession limit of four.

A Conservation Commission spokesman says that not a lot is known about the spoonbill, probably less than about any other fish in Missouri.

Years ago the spoonbill was rather plentiful in the Mississippi River, but the numbers there are small now. Because so little is known about old long nose, it isn't known what caused the big decline in the Mississippi population unless it was the former heavy take of them for commercial caviar added to the increasing pollution of the river.

St. Louis Bow Meet
The St. Louis Bow Hunters Association has scheduled its first archery tournament of the year April 13 at the August A. Busch Memorial Wildlife Area, operated by the Conservation Commission near Weldon Springs on Highway 40-61. Registration will begin at 8 a.m. with shooting on a 28-target field round scheduled for 9 a.m. Sandwiches and drinks will be available at the range at noon and a 14-target hunter's round is slated for 1:30 p.m. Supper is scheduled for 5 p.m. at the lodge, and awards will be presented to the winners at that time. Target fees are $2 for adults, $1.50 for intermediates, and $1 for juniors.

Several members of the Osage Bowmen's Club from this area are expected to attend.

Rory Calhoun Scores
Sixth Round TKO

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Rory Calhoun scored a sixth round technical knockout over Yolande Pompey in a televised fight here last night that sent Pompey to a hospital for about an hour.

Dr. John Ambach halted the fight after Calhoun connected with a hard right to Pompey's jaw in the fifth. Pompey subsequently couldn't move his neck.

Physicians at St. Joseph Infirmary here said Pompey had suffered a spasm of the neck muscles. The fighter from Trinidad said he suffered a similar injury two years ago in England.

He was released from the hospital after doctors put 10 stitches in a cut over his left eye which Calhoun had opened in the third round.

Calhoun pummeled Pompey for the first two rounds and continued hitting away at Pompey's cut eye after the third.

Calhoun, sixth ranked middleweight according to Ring Magazine, went into the fight at 161½, 3½ pounds lighter than Pompey.

Pompey, Ring's third ranked light heavyweight, now as a 34-5-3 record.

Braves Stop
Training At Florida Camp

BRADENTON, Fla. (AP)—The world champion Milwaukee Braves broke their Florida training camp today. Manager Fred Haney said the team would be ready if the season opened tomorrow.

"The players I am counting on are in good shape," he said.

"The weather hasn't been too good, but we have pushed every chance we have had and from now on the fringes will have to get in what work they can in batting, pitching and fielding practices."

"Our club is set for the opener at practically every position."

The Braves headed for Jacksonville, where they were matched against Los Angeles with left-hander Warren Spahn slated to make one of his infrequent starts against the Dodgers. Bob Rush was scheduled to work the late innings.

The assignment of Spahn to the starting role means that Haney has established his pitching rotation. Others who will appear in turn are Lew Burdette, who may turn out to be the top winner on the squad this year, and Bob Buhl, who still needs more work to reach his peak.

While his starting rotation is set, Haney still has an abundance of pitching talent, including Carlton Willey, brilliant curve ball hurler who has been picked as a candidate for Rookie of the Year honors.

Haney hinted the young right-hander has earned a place on the roster when he said Willey, Ernie Johnson and Bob Trowbridge are his "long men"—early relief pitchers who figure to produce four or five good innings and then leave for a pinch batter.

Bill Skowron
Has No Need
For Worry

By ED WILKS
The Associated Press

It seems Bill Skowron always starts to worry whenever he's pushed into the cleanup spot in the New York Yankees' batting order during the regular season. So Manager Casey Stengel decided he'd put him there in the spring exhibitions and let him get his worryin' over early.

If Skowron still is worrying, this kind of worry could put the guys who make the tranquilizers out of business.

The Moose—not Mickey Mantle—leads the American League champs with a .415 batting average, seven home runs and 20 RBI. He rapped two homers again yesterday as the Yanks beat Washington 7-5.

Skowron helped push Yankee starter Johnny Kucks into a 6-0 lead with his slam off Camilo Pascual in the second. But the young right-hander blew most of it and the score was 6-5 after the fifth when Neil Chrissy drove in three with a double. The Moose got a solo homer in the ninth off Bud Beyerly.

Best pitching was at Sarasota, Fla., where Boston beat Pittsburgh 2-0. Both runs were scored in the eighth on a pair of wild pitches by rookie southpaw Joe Gibbon. The Red Sox had just one hit, Don Buddin's first inning single, through seven off Ron Kline and Bob Smith. Ike DeLock and Leo Kiehl combined for the shut-out for Boston.

Jim Bunning went all the way for Detroit and allowed Cincinnati only three base runners over the last six innings, but by then it was too late. Gus Bell homered in the first and Smoky Burgess slugged one with a man on in the second to beat the Tigers 3-2. Brooks Lawrence, Charley Rabe and Jay Hook shut off the Tigers with five hits.

The Tigers bought outfielder Stan Palys from the Redlegs for an undisclosed price.

No Surprise At Education TV Award

By CHARLES MERCER
PITTSBURGH — Serious-minded television viewers in this area are not surprised that station WQED-TV yesterday received the annual George Foster Peabody Award for outstanding television education.

The award falls on the fourth anniversary of this independent, nonprofit station which was founded to serve the community and is supported by voluntary contributions of money and effort.

It is a healthy example of what a community can do if it wants its own station with a large amount of programming directed toward education of the younger generation.

WQED is now presenting about 90 hours a week of programs Monday through Friday and on Sunday. Daytime programs are aimed primarily at serving schools in the area.

Specially trained teachers are using the television facilities of the station to transmit to 350 school classrooms in Pittsburgh and seven western Pennsylvania counties. The subjects are sixth-grade reading, seventh-grade English, ninth-grade science and high school physics.

Its evening shows are 55 to 60 per cent live—probably the largest proportion of live evening programming of any local station in the country.

The Peabody Award specifically cites WQED, in addition to its educational programming, for its "Heritage" series of interviews with a variety of prominent persons which was distributed to other educational stations throughout the country.

John F. White, general manager of the station, recalls that the "Heritage" series began more than a year ago with an interview between Dr. Jonas Salk, discoverer of the polio vaccine, and Robert Frost, the poet—who returned last weekend to participate in the station's anniversary observance.

"We expected the interview would run an hour," said White, "but it was going so well that we kept right on. We ran for an hour and 50 minutes. Why not? What more absorbing thing could television be presenting than a fascinating conversation between a great poet and a great scientist?"

That pretty well summarizes the programming creed of WQED: present what it considers the most worthwhile program at the time.

Should Use Caution During Spring Seeding

With the likelihood of late spring planting weather, Missouri farmers are going to be in a hurry to get seed in the ground. But don't let spring planting rush cause carelessness in tractor handling. Don't run tractors at excessive speeds over rough plowed ground. Operate tractors and drawn implements safely on highways.

Howe Relative Heads Planned Progress Set

Mrs. Clara Reinholdt, sister of Mrs. Bryan Howe, 420 West Broadway, headed the Planned Progress Council which recently won a campaign to eliminate the toll at a bridge across the Gasconade River at Gasconade, Mo.

The agreement with the Highway Department for the purchase of the bridge marks the end of a year-long campaign to eliminate the toll which had been in effect since the bridge was constructed in 1930. The Highway Department offered the owners $200,000 for the bridge.

For its civic efforts, including the work on the bridge problem, the council, led by Mrs. Reinholdt, placed second in last year's Planned Progress competition, and she said the check would be used was awarded a check for $250 for work on a community building.

Easter's Untold Stories

Cyrenian's Life Is Changed Forever When He Takes Up Cross Of Christ

EDITOR'S NOTE: The third in a four-part series on minor characters in the Easter drama, this is story of Simon, who without plan or warning suddenly found himself intimately involved in Jesus' final hours.

By GEORGE CORNELL
Associated Press Religion Writer

Like many another tourist, Simon saw the martial procession coming down the hill from the Fortress Antonia. Curious, he stopped to watch it. He could make out three prisoners, each carrying a heavy wooden beam.

It seemed queer—a hanging in the holiday week. Simon shrugged, worked the betel nut in his jaw, and spat.

He was a giant of a man, dark of skin, with a proud, erect stance. His massive hands were callused, and he had the sun-inked eyes of a farmer. But his turban and mantle were of finest woven wool.

He came from Cyrene, in Libya's fertile, coastal hills where he and his sons, Rufus and Alexander, raised great fields of cotton. Marketing business may have brought him on his trip to Jerusalem.

From up the street, the formation approached slowly, led by a Roman herald bearing the decree of execution.

Behind trudged the prisoners, prodded along by four soldiers. Others marched at the rear, their orange-colored capes rippling at their backs. A centurion moved at the side of the column, occasionally snapping orders.

Simon found his attention riveted on one of the victims, a slender, bearded man, whose face was scratched, blood-streaked and puffed with ashen bruises. His arms bore the jagged gashes of the metal and bone-tipped lash.

Neither of the other two men, both burly, vicious-looking ruffians, showed any signs of a flogging. Only the one appeared gravely hurt and weakened. Red stains soaked the back of his robe.

Yet, with all the marks of abuse and injury, there was about him a formidable strength. He was broken, crushed, but somehow, still relentlessly determined in his walk to doom. Simon felt a surge of admiration.

The crowd had thickened, but when the big man from Africa stepped forward a bit, the others edged aside, opening a path. He had not intended to move closer, but the action came involuntarily.

His ears picked up scatterings of talk now, and so of the on-lookers pointed their fingers. "The Nazarene," they said, "The disturber, Jesus." The other two condemned men were said to be bandits, Dysmas and Gestas.

The hands of all three were tied, held aloft athwart the wooden beams which rested on their right shoulders. To Simon's practiced eye, the boards looked about four cubits (six feet) long, about two palms wide and three fingers thick. These were the horizontal pieces of the crosses on which they would die. The uprights already were in place on Calvary.

Simon's eyes narrowed resentfully as he watched the agonized progress of the Nazarene. The man's breath came in light, rapid gasps, and he tottered uncontrollably each time he advanced a foot.

Then, just as the prisoners came abreast of Simon, the Nazarene stumbled on a jutting cobblestone and pitched forward on the pavement. The board slammed against his back.

A soldier cursed. Another one, muttering, slid the board free, and the centurion came running up to get the prisoner back on his feet. Once up, the officer surveyed him dubiously and shook his head.

Then his irritated gaze swept the crowd. Simon stood out, a natural physical specimen for a heavy load. The centurion jabbed a finger at him—"You!"

Simon eyed the soldier warily. He didn't like jumping to Roman commands. Then he glanced at the battered prisoner, and that puzzling attraction, another sort of command, rang in him.

He wiped his lips and strolled over beside the crossbeam. With a quick, easy dip of powerful arms, he swung it to his shoulder. Then he turned and for the first time his eyes met those of Jesus.

It was only an instant, but to Simon it held an eternity of affection received. Those eyes, despite all the man's mistreatment, swam with a strangely rich animation, with a deep knowledge and immense love.

There was something else, too, a sort of brotherliness, as if in the flash of a single look, he knew you utterly, through and through, and made you a cherished companion. There were no guarded reservations, no barriers in those eyes.

Never before had Simon felt so fully wanted, so genuinely needed and approved. It wasn't so much gratitude that he saw in that look, but a limitless understanding that smiled approval and kinship.

At a barked order, the procession resumed, and Simon stepped along beside the prisoner, hardly aware of the weight on his shoulder. It seemed light as straw, and he couldn't shake off a baffling sensation. He had an urge to thank this condemned man, Jesus, for the chance to carry the beam. It just didn't make sense, this feeling he had of being especially good and worthy, because he walked with this man to Calvary.

Jesus walked more steadily now, and Simon heard him sigh with relief. It was about six furlongs (three fourths of a mile) out to the hill of crucifixion—called Golgotha, place of the skull.

No record tells what conversation passed between Simon and Jesus on that somber walk together, but it is possible that they spoke, that Jesus explained his lone, wonderful, terrible mission to the world.

"I am the good shepherd . . . I lay down my life for the sheep." A farmer would understand such language. ". . . I lay down My life, that I may take it again . . . He who believes in Me, though he die, yet shall he live again."

They reached the hill. The prisoners were stripped, and laid on their backs while their outstretched arms were nailed to the crossbeams. These were then hoisted to the stakes, the beams lashed in place, and the victims' feet nailed to the stakes.

Simon could help Jesus no more. The hours of torture began—the crawling, creeping, muscle-cramping, lung-constricting horror of crucifixion—the slow death of pain—one of the cruelest forms of execution ever devised.

Loud were the taunts. Bitter the mockery. And Jesus implored, "Father, forgive them . . ." The soldiers gambled, and the crowd gawked. "My God, my God . . ."

The sky turned black and the earth shook. "It is finished!"

Slowly, Simon turned and walked away. The big African would never be the same again. His strong arms had taken him into the embrace of stronger arms still.

In the years afterward, Simon from Cyrene labored with Jesus' apostles, as did his two sons. He had discovered, suddenly and without plan, that life's greatest compensation came when he took up a cross and followed Jesus.

Dish Is New But Easy

THIS SAVORY LUNCHEON DISH of marinated cucumber and onion rings with sardines may also be used as an appetizer.

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
Looking for springtime lunch ideas? Is the family home Saturday and would you like to serve them a new but simple-to-prepare dish?

Then try this good combination of sardines with cucumber slices and onion rings. The vegetables are marinated, in Scandinavian style, with vinegar, sugar and salt. The sardines are pure American, packed in Maine, in a slightly spiced soya bean oil and come six to a 4-ounce can.

The cucumbers and onion rings should stand in the marinating liquid for about three hours before they are served, so slice the vegetables and put them in the marinade early in the morning. Refrigerate them in a flat covered container and they'll be seasoned beautifully by noon.

SARDINES WITH CUCUMBER AND ONION RINGS

Ingredients: 1 cucumber (about 7 inches long), 1 medium-sized onion, 1/2 cup cider vinegar, 2 tablespoons sugar, 2 tablespoons water, 1/4 teaspoon salt, white pepper, 2 cans (4 ounces each) sardines packed in slightly spiced soya bean oil, 2 tablespoons minced parsley.

Method: Wash cucumber in cold water and dry; cut off end. With swivel-blade vegetable peeler, pare cucumber lengthwise leaving part of green skin in a striped effect. Slice into paper-thin rounds. Cut ends from onion; peel; slice into paper-thin rounds; separate into rings. Stir vinegar, sugar, water, salt and a dash of pepper together until sugar dissolves. Mix with cucumbers and onion rings in a flat container (about 8 inches square). Cover tightly; refrigerate for 2 to 3 hours. At serving time, drain thoroughly. Open sardines. Lift out carefully from oil and transfer to serving dish. Top with marinated cucumbers and onion rings; sprinkle with parsley. Serve at once. Makes 4 servings.

KITCHEN TIPS

The marinade for the cucumber and onion rings may be varied. Cream (sweet or sour) seasoned with lemon juice, sugar, white pepper and a dash of garlic salt may be used.

Minced fresh dill may be added to the standard marinade we have given you.

Tarragon vinegar may be substituted for part of the cider vinegar in the standard marinade.

You will need a wide-blade extremely sharp kitchen knife to cut the cucumber and onion rings thin. Or if you don't wield a sharp knife deftly, you can use a swivel-blade vegetable peeler to shave off paper-thin round cucumber slices.

Irishman Recalls Sedalia Lecture 50 Years Ago

Seamus MacManus, Irish author, poet and lecturer, remembers lecturing in Sedalia 50 years ago, according to a letter from him to Miss Mary Helen Mayer.

Not only that, but he recalls that he spent the night at the Antlers Hotel, then owned by Mr. Glass, a native of the next parish to his, in Donegal. There was a Donegal man here, too, by the name of MacHugh. Many Donegal "pedlars" came in from surrounding territory, he said, to meet and hear him.

Miss Mayer, who is a great reader and also a writer, liked the literature of MacManus, so she wrote him a letter. There was another reason as well — her mother's maiden name was MacManus. They are not related but Seamus MacManus was very interested in her letter because it reminded him of his stop in Sedalia, the lecture, the friends he made 50 years ago.

Among the books he has written are "The Rocky Road to Dublin," "Heavy Hauls the Golden Grain," "The Story of the Irish Race," "The Well O' The World's End" and "Bold Heroes of Hungry Hill."

You should know this about baking

Home Nursing Course Given At Bunceton

By Miss Emma Lee Kurtz
BUNCETON — Mrs. Earl Hayes and Mrs. Joe Fancier, Pilot Grove, taught a home nursing course at the Bunceton High School Monday evening.

Miss Elizabeth Cully, Paola, Kan., who has been a patient in the St. Joseph's Hospital, Boonville for medical treatment, was moved recently to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Campbell, Boonville, and is reported to be improved.

Mrs. Sarah Spangler left Saturday for a visit in the home of her son, Mr. Wilbur Vieth and sons in Boonville.

Easter Eggs

It wouldn't seem like Easter without eggs. As the holiday ap-proaches, children (and many grown-ups) begin to think of gaily colored eggs and additional eggs included in menus.

Appearance, the shell color and perhaps the size is what counts in selecting eggs for coloring. Brown shelled eggs color equally as well as white shelled eggs. Brown shells give bright, vivid colors; white shells are best for pastels.

Wipe shells thoroughly with a moist cloth, then allow to dry. Eggs that have limy shells will dye with tiny white spots.

Blow eggs out of shells or hard cook eggs before tinting. A little borax in cooking water will help condition shells for best dyeing.

Eggs dye best when hot and hot water dyes are fastest. Prepare dye according to the manufactur-er's instructions. Immerse eggs until they become the shade de-sired. Let eggs dry and then you're ready to use your imagination and decoration.

Mothers frequently ask whether children should eat dyed cooked eggs. A statement that the color is harmless may be found on the package containing Easter egg dyes. Though the dyed eggs are hard cooked, it is best to eat them within a day or so.

How Do Your Meals Measure Up in Vitamin A?

You are a better meal planner than average if your day's meals, including snacks, have plenty of Vitamin A.

Plants are the original source of vitamin A. Carotene is the yellow pigment found in green and yellow vegetables and fruit. In green leaves, red tomatoes, and green peppers the yellow carotene is eaten by animals or human beings, the liver converts it into active Vitamin A and then stores it in the liver to release it as is needed by the body.

The more green foods the chicken eats the richer the egg yolks are in vitamin A. The green sea plants fish eat cause fish livers to be exceedingly high in vitamin A. The livers of all meat animals, pork, beef, chicken, are excellent sources of vitamin A as well as iron and other important nutrients, so it might be well to include liver in your family meals at least once every other week.

Other good sources of vitamin A are butter, margarine, cheese, cream, egg yolk—enough vitamin A for a day for an average adult would be provided by two glasses of whole milk, one egg, butter or margarine and a serving of a dark green or yellow vegetable.

Cooking does not destroy vitamin A. It dissolves in fat but not in water, and it's not lost in can-nings.

What does vitamin A do for us?

First, it is indispensable for normal growth in children. It pro-motes growth, long life and good health. Second, it is essential for functioning of eyes. In the retina in back of the eye there is a sub-stance called visual purple. This is constantly being destroyed by light. The body has to have vitamin A to build visual purple. Night blindness is an early sign of a pos-sible lack of Vitamin A. Third, it keeps the inside and outside lin-ing of the body in good condition. Vitamin A seems to be necessary to keep the secretion flowing freely in the mucous membranes of the nose, mouth, sinus, lungs and di-gestive tract. Toad skin, a bumpy, roughened skin, indicates that more Vitamin A may be needed. And finally, vitamin A is import-ant in the formation of tooth enamel.

Vitamins are not the only nutri-ents needed in each day's meal. Protein, minerals, fats and carbo-hydrates are just as essential. But if your meals are short of any nutrient your family's health and vitality will not be at its best.

So, to be sure your meals mea-sure up in Vitamin A it might be well to keep a reminder of veg-etables that are high in vitamin A on your kitchen bulletin board.

You might like to experiment a little and find ways to serve less familiar vegetables like broccoli, butternut squash, raw spinach, dandelion greens and kale.

If you have a home garden, you might boost the value of your meals by growing a new leafy green vegetable this year. Study the Missouri vegetable planting calendar with one eye on the table of food values. With a little spirit of adventure you may step up the

Frances Hemphill

Public Health Nurse Profession
Filled With Varied Experiences

Frances Hemphill, who is public health nurse supervisor for the Missouri Division of Health in the northwest section of the state, has found the nursing profession can be varied and full of experiences, especially when one has a sense of humor.

Frances, who is the wife of Earl E. Hemphill, grew up with a great knowledge of nursing and was inspired to follow in the footsteps of her aunt, Miss Mary Stebbins, who died recently. Miss Stebbins was a pioneer in nursing in Missouri, the United States and International Council of Nurses. She was a charter member of the Missouri Nurses Association and assisted with the organization of the 10th District, of which Sedalia is a part. It was to Mary Stebbins that the wonderful book on the profession, "Missouri Nurses," was dedicated.

It seemed that the blazing trail in nursing that Mary Stebbins helped to light influenced other members of Frances' family, too, for one of her brothers is a surgeon and another is a pharmacist.

Growing up in Lebanon, where her parents still live, Frances went into nursing training after she graduated from high school there, and was graduated from the St. Luke's Training School for Nurses, St. Louis, later taking up the field of public health at the University of Michigan. She spent four months in field experience at the Rockefeller Foundation.

As public health nurse supervisor for this section, composed of District III with headquarters in Sedalia and District I with headquarters in Cameron, Frances Hemphill's job is to supervise, teach and evaluate nursing technique of nurses working on the state staff of district health offices, serving counties with no local official services, county nurses and public health nurses in county units. Her total area is 32 counties with 16 nurses.

She assists in making investigations, studies and surveys in phases of the public health program relating to in-service training. Also, she assists in recruiting, and evaluating qualifications of, nurses for public health positions. The nurses work with individuals, families and community groups in homes, schools, clinics, meetings, under the general medical direction in cooperation with other agencies and other public health personnel including engineers, sanitarian directors and public health educators. They help families carry out doctors' orders and give nursing care for such things as chronic diseases and communicable diseases, they give maternal and child care, assist with school health programs, and assist groups in studying information in maintenance of health, health conditions and preventing disease and disability.

Frances' work varies, for, with work in both district offices, she must do a lot of traveling and finds herself working with nurses

Two Sedalians Win
Ford Club Awards

Two Ford salesmen from Sedalia, were presented with Ford 300-500 Club awards at Kansas City this week by R. A. Godfrey, manager of Ford Division's Kansas City sales district. They are among 135 Missouri and eastern Kansas Ford salesmen so honored out of more than 750 competing in the program.

The winners were James Schumaker and Homer Thomas of W. A. Smith Motors, Inc., Sedalia.

The award presentation took place at a banquet in honor of the top-ranking salesmen of 1957 in the Kansas City Ford district.

The 300-500 Club is a national organization of Ford salesmen who chalked up outstanding sales records last year.

Mrs. Frances Hemphill

in the office, nurses in the field and attending related meetings. She is away from Sedalia part or all of each week. Her work is under the state merit system.

Even before she was graduated from nurses training, Frances was a student delegate from the United States to the International Council of Nurses when it met in Montreal, Canada, in 1929.

In her career of nursing, Frances has done floor supervision at St. Luke's Hospital, two years of school nursing, served as county nurse in two Missouri counties and in December, 1957, received an award for 20 years' service with the Missouri Division of Health, which included district nursing, supervision of nurses and administration of district health offices. She has always worked in central or eastern Missouri counties.

Mrs. Hemphill has been chairman of the nurses section of the Missouri Public Health Association and has served on state committees of the Missouri Public Health Association and Missouri State Nurses Association. She is a member of the American Public Health Association, National League of Nursing Education, Missouri Public Health Association and the 10th District Missouri State Nurses Association with headquarters in Sedalia.

There have been many trying experiences in her work, but she has always been able to see the funny side of sometimes bad situations. Often her hardest work has been dealing with superstitions while she was trying to teach modern methods and scientific facts in curing ill.

Mrs. Hemphill recalls many funny things that have happened in attempts to improve inadequate equipment in homes years ago—which went along with the job but were certainly a little beyond the call of regular nursing duty. She was reminded of one of these incidents recently by an engineer who drove up to a house one day to assist with an investigation and instructions where there were several cases of typhoid. The engineer was surprised and amused when he saw Frances up on top of the house helping the man who lived there trying to patch a hole in the roof so it wouldn't rain so hard inside where she was trying to care for the patients.

The things Frances did never seemed to be forgotten by those who laughed at her at the time and have laughed about them many times since. Not long ago, a woman recalled the time Frances was teaching a home nursing class and that particular day she had gone just as far in the mud in her car as she could go. So she left the car and continued on to the community building in a wagon with six farm women, who were attending the classes. The horses were having quite a time pulling through the mud, too, and the wheels turned hard and slowly through the mire. Frances got so interested in watching the wheels struggling along the road that she lost her balance and fell overboard into the deep, sticky mud. The other women tugged and pulled until they finally got her out of the mud and back into the wagon, but she was a sorry sight. Nevertheless, she went right on to the community hall and taught the class—mud and all—as if she were perfectly groomed for the occasion.

Nets Big Bomb

PORT ISABEL, Tex. — The crew of the shrimp boat "Frances H." found a 1,000-pound bomb without fuse or tail fins in their nets while fishing about 40 miles northeast of here. They turned it over to the Navy.

Cmdr. C. D. Huston, commanding officer of the Naval Auxiliary Air Station, said the bomb was about 4½ feet long and resembled a regular U.S. 1,000-pound bomb.

says, is not such an effort and the content of the teaching is different, too, because of the present-day hospital facilities and new medicines, and no longer are there epidemics of diphtheria, smallpox, typhoid and other diseases.

Frances and her husband like to fish and hunt, and they love bird dogs. They usually go west on vacations but have fished in Canada many times and have been in all sections of the United States on vacations and sightseeing trips. They like history, so they frequently take side trips while traveling to see historic spots or talk with people regarding local history wherever they are.

When it comes to organizations, Frances is a member of the Business and Professional Women's Club in Sedalia and has belonged to several other Federated Clubs in Missouri.

Swim Suits
Disappoint
Porky Hamm

SAN FRANCISCO — It was a day of great disappointment in the life of Mr. Porky Hamm.

Mr. Hamm is round and a photographer. He's been taking pictures for the papers ever since he started photographing Mr. Harry Truman as county judge back in Missouri.

Yesterday, Mr. Hamm drew the delightful assignment of taking pictures of Jantzen's 1958 line of swim suits with pretty girls in them. He took it like a man and went almost gleefully to do the job.

He had visions of an abbreviated 1958 Bikini.

"Maybe," he confided to envious friends, "they'll be G-strings this year."

What Mr. Hamm saw was different. Most necklines were higher.

And backlines, man, they are lower and lower!

"Almost broke my heart," said Mr. Hamm. "There's a lot of fabric in those suits this year."

The swim suits were pretty. And the girls were pretty, too.

About the bathing suits: The semichemise vied with conquistador designs from South America.

There was a scoop-necked or covered-up front with a deep plunge back item and another with what the manufacturer called a brave bra.

But the eye catchers were the manufacturer's answer to the Bikini—a red thing with a lot of front to it and with a lissome thing inside, and one called the Depth Charge—a deep V-back suit that was real cool.

The answer to the Bikini, however disappointing it was to Mr. Hamm because of the amount of cloth in it, is California's early season choice.

Refreshments were served.

SECOND CHILDHOOD—Village life of his childhood in Zikhovec, Czechoslovakia, is recalled by John A. Nahlinger, 75, in this miniature scene. Numerous pulleys, nine motors, belts and magnets provide motion for the people he carved in wood. The village mill with characteristic windmill is operated by water power. The scene includes a woman spinning in the house at left, skaters on the village pond at right and a ski lift in the background. Other figures are an organ grinder, chimney sweep and hunter. Nahlinger, who lives with his wife in Cleveland, Ohio, retired nine years ago and has worked on this project ever since.

Texas Museum Stories Related
By A Missouri-Born Historian

When Texans visit the imposing Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum at Canyon, Texas, the story they hear about the glories of their state's past is told by a historian born and trained in Missouri, including attendance at high school in Sedalia. Dr. Hattie M. Anderson, a native of Norborne, Mo., and now a retired history professor for which she serves as guide and lecturer.

Today, after 37 years of class room lecturing on Texas history, Miss Anderson uses her extensive knowledge of the subject in talks she gives when conducting school groups through the museum. She volunteered her services in order to bring to life to Texas school children the interesting aspects of their state's history as seen in the museum's exhibits, dioramas and historical objects.

"From the beginning we wanted the society to be for all the Panhandle," explains Dr. Anderson.

Explaining history for students at any age level comes natural teaching in rural Missouri when she was only 16 years old. That began the career which has extended through more than 40 years of teaching including 37 years at West Texas State College, Canyon. She retired as professor of history there last August.

Dr. Anderson graduated from Central Missouri State College at Warrensburg in 1917. She was a teaching assistant at the University of Missouri while earning her master's and doctorate degrees. She also studied one year at the University of Chicago. Before going to Texas Dr. Anderson taught at Synodical College at Fulton and Missouri Wesleyan College.

She started the society in 1921 with 30 of her West Texas State College history students; Dr. L. F. Sheffy, then head of the department, and seven other college faculty members. This group set out with the avowed purpose of collecting historical objects, documents and lore about the Panhandle-Plains country. The society hoped to ultimately build a museum to house its historical material.

The society was able to acquire land for the building site just two years after it had been formed but it required ten years of fund raising from college, state and federal sources to start the building nearly ten years later. The first unit of the museum—Pioneer Hall—was built in 1933. This was the first building on a Texas college campus devoted to historical exhibits and archives.

The museum has been popular with Texans from its very first year when, in spite of gas and tire rationing, more than 30,000 visitors were registered.

Many west Texans have contributed exhibits and historical materials to the museum which maintains a full time curator and Dr. Anderson as guide. Dr. Anderson has been corresponding secretary of the Panhandle-Plains Historical Society since 1940.

The history professor turned museum lecturer has written many articles for historical journals. She is co-author of an American history text, "My Country and Yours" for sixth and seventh grade students. This is a state-adopted text in five southern states.

Dr. Anderson is listed in the current edition of the Directory of American Scholars. She has been included in such publications as American Women, and Who's Who in the South and Southwest.

Wives Lead
Single Girls
In Abortions

NEW YORK —The most frequent patron of the abortionist is the wife—not the single girl, divorcee or widow—says the latest Kinsey Institute report.

"Of all pregnancies among married women, only 66 per cent result in the birth of a child, 17 per cent end in miscarriage, and 17 per cent in abortions," the current issue of McCull's magazine said in an article on the report.

Other findings:

Almost three out of four women no longer married—widowed, divorced or separated—continued to have sexual relations.

Today's young wives are having fewer abortions than their mothers did at the same age.

Miscarriage is more common than generally realized.

The article, the second in a series of two on the Kinsey Report, "Pregnancy, Birth and Abortion," deals with wives, divorcees and widows. The first article on the report dealt with single girls.

The sampling taken by the institute was derived from interviews with 5,293 white women—part of the same group used for the 1953 study on sexual behavior of American females.

The magazine noted that the group interviewed contained a high proportion of women of the upper 20 per cent in educational background and social standing and that there was a high proportion of women from the Northeast and from urban areas.

Women from rural areas, Roman Catholics and women with only grade-school educations made up a relatively small number in the sampled group.

Asserting the number of abortions is far higher than had been generally suspected, the magazine said: "Thus by the time wives have reached their 40s, and in most cases have been pregnant several times, the number who have had an abortion is 24 per cent—just about 1 out of every 4."

"Many of these 24 per cent have had not just one abortion but several; in fact, the women in this group average slightly more than two abortions each."

"Miscarriage also turns out to be more common than perhaps has been realized. By the time wives have reached their 40s, 26 per cent have had a miscarriage at one time or another. As to how many have become actual mothers, the total is 72 per cent."

McCull's said the peak for the percentage of wives who had abortions was among those born between 1900 and 1909 and who reached their child-bearing years during the depression.

"Today's young wives are having far fewer abortions than did their mothers at the same age," it continued.

"There can be no question that today's young wives are the most eager for motherhood of any our nation has seen in years. They are not afraid to get pregnant, and they have less to do with abortionists than any preceding generation."

Parents Learn
About Future
Nurses' Club

The Smith-Cotton Parent and Family Life meeting group held their last meeting of the school year Tuesday evening, March 25, at the high school, with Mrs. Ralph Rohrbach, chairman, presiding.

Te devotional, "For the preparation of life," was given by Mrs. George Chamberlain. She pointed out that many parents provide good food, clothing and shelter for their children, but neglect spiritual training, which is one of their most important needs.

Mrs. Carl Schrader introduced a group of girls—Judy Warren, Charlotte Jacks, Pat Fisher, Sharon Vedder, April Burton, Barbara Loveland, Nona Payne and Donna Lynn—who sang "Smiling Through," "My Wild Irish Rose," "Evening," and "The Lilac Tree."

Mrs. John Murrell was the speaker of the evening, using as her subject the Future Nurses' Club. This club was organized last year just before school was out. The Medical Society Auxiliary sponsors it. Last summer some of the girls helped out at the Crippled Children's Center. They have made tray favors for Bothwell Hospital, stuffed 8,000 envelopes with TB seeds at Christmas, and are planning to dye Easter eggs for the Crippled Children's Center. They have taken one field trip to visit the St. Luke's Hospital and General Hospital in Kansas City, and are planning to visit the University Hospital at Columbia sometime in April. They have a point system worked out by which they earn their pins. Their uniform consists of a blue and white checked pinafore and white blouse. At present Mrs. A. J. Campbell, Jr. is teaching them the art of being good baby sitters.

Mrs. Rohrbach closed the meeting by reading an article "What Job For Junior," by Lyle M. Spencer.

Randall Jessee

TV Personality Will Address Sorosis Monday

Randall Jessee, WDAF radio and WDAF-TV, Kansas City, will be the speaker at Sorosis Monday afternoon at Heard Memorial Club House.

Randall Jessee was born in Prathersville, Mo., went to grammar and high school in Excelsior Springs, attended William Jewell and Missouri Valley College, and after a year as a seaman, returned to Excelsior Springs where he hawked mineral water. He got his start on the air on old WLBK, later KCKN, moved to KWOS in Jefferson City and KWOC at Poplar Bluff, returned to KCKN and finally in 1940 wound up at WDAF. During this time he also was in Sedalia for a short time at the start of the KDRO station here.

Jessee lives with his wife, daughter, Jana, sons, Randy and Lance, in a well-maintained, three-story brick house at Valentine road and Madison in Kansas City.

A person who always has time, this busy man is never too busy to stop and listen, and that best explains the affectionate regard of people for "Mr. TV." It was such things as reading the comics over the radio during a strike in 1947, on the program called "Uncle Randy Reads the Comics," that made him such a hit with radio listeners. Then there was his outstanding performance, at personal risk, during the 1951 flood. It was at this time that he found time, with the aid of Soroptimist, to raise $30,000 for a recreation hall where the homeless were housed.

He merited a top spot, too, in the political conventions of both parties.

Randall Jessee, who will take for his subject, "I Live on Air," will be introduced by Mrs. Leo E. Eickhoff, current topics chairman.

Fewer Families Ask Aid Than Expected

ST. LOUIS — City officials said fewer families than expected have signed up for distribution of free government surplus food in St. Louis.

City Comptroller John Poelker estimated 4,000 to 5,000 persons would register for the food program, prompted by unemployment that has reached more than 70,000, a 16-year peak in this area.

Only 1,214 persons applied yesterday, first day of a three-day registration program.

The low number of registrants for the surplus food, Poelker said, indicated that many families still have some member working.

In African Jungle

Unusual Experience Revealed at Sorosis

An unusual story of a woman who went to Africa as a bride, lived in the jungle area where she was the first white woman, bore a child in that primitive country, and returned there 32 years later as a grandmother to find the vast changes that had taken place was told by Mrs. Margaret Sally Keach of Johnson County, Kan., as she related her experiences at Sorosis Monday afternoon.

When she was 19, Mrs. Keach said, she was married to a young mining engineer at Rolla, her home, and went with him to the diamond mines of Africa. For two years she lived in the jungle where there was no other white woman, and the first of her two sons was born there.

Her husband, she said, was killed in an automobile accident after they returned to Kansas City to live, and she was left to provide for the two sons, which she did through writing and lecturing.

It was after a writing assignment during the war, in Texas, which was suddenly terminated, that she was returning home by train and was seated with Lt. Commander John R. Keach, became acquainted with him and four months later married him.

It was in 1955, that, after two years' planning for such a trip, she went to Europe with a group of journalist friends and later left them to continue on to Africa where she had been 32 years before. It had been in Africa that she began her writing career and published the book, "White Mother In Africa," which told of her experiences there at that time.

She left her friends in Rome and flew to Africa entering it through the northern gate of Egypt. Egypt, she said, had almost no relation to the rest of Africa. This country is the most civilized in the world, having had the same things for thousands of years as our civilization, up until the oil age that we have now, Mrs. Keach said. She found the people hospitable and gracious with something about them, even to the lowest of them, that was pleasing. She wanted to visit with the educated and the poor people, she wanted to know more about all phases of life there. But she wanted very much to visit in a middle class home.

When she said she wanted to go to the Suez, they tried to talk her out of it, saying there was nothing there to see, and it was very hot. But she wanted to go and when she entered a bus going there she was the only one there who was not an Arab. The man back of her said something to her in English and she knew that at least one person spoke her language. They talked and he asked her to have lunch with them and then he would show her around. They went up four flights of stairs, Mrs. Keach said, to a neat little apartment that overlooked the Red Sea.

Mrs. Keach and the man sat on the porch and talked while his wife, who did not speak English but smiled and nodded to her, prepared a delicious lunch. Mrs. Keach was not surprised to see that the table was set for only two, for the couple were Moslems and the women do not eat with the men. She pretended not to know the customs and asked the man if his wife would not eat with them, but he replied his wife was not hungry.

The Moslems are allowed four wives, but the women have managed to get through a law that the four must be treated equally, and a man just couldn't treat four wives as equals, so he just has one wife, Mrs. Keach said.

Some of the Egyptians were very white, some dark, she said. She talked with President Nasser, who impressed her very much, and she felt he would do a great deal for the country. The land that had always been owned by rich land owners is now being sold to the people in three to ten acre plots, the first time in the history of the country they have owned land.

She told of Ethiopia, a beautiful, cool country, with very brave people.

When she reached the Belgian Congo, where she had once lived, she was surprised to find the language spoken in the place where she had lived and which she had learned to speak came back to her and she could talk to the people. She was surprised at the progress made here in the 32 years since she had been there. People stood on the street reading, proud that they had learned to read what was on the written page. She was amazed when she went into a beautiful new bank building to find the Africans working in banks, as well as in the post office and other places. They were under white supervision, but they were educated enough to be able to hold these jobs. These, said Mrs. Keach, were the children of those people who had come out of the jungle in complete ignorance and had reached this in just one generation. The Africans are very intelligent, she said, and this proves it. All they need is more of the white man's way and more opportunity.

No one need be to afraid to travel in Africa in the cities, for they are as modern as anywhere with the most modern accommodations in hotels. But going out into the other parts is a different story, she said. In one place that she was to spend the night there were ants in the bed, spiders and bats in the room and wild animals outside. There she was terribly homesick.

She visited the city where her child was born and was given a servant, an old man who remembered her and the baby. She visited where she had once lived.

The missionaries, she said, are doing a wonderful job in education and the government, wanting education for its people, want them to extend its educational program.

Mrs. Keach traveled throughout Africa in many ways, by car, by jeep, by plane, by bus. It was a real thrill, she said, to return to the country where there were so many wonderful memories, and come back home with the fascinating story of "Adventuring Back To Africa."

Mrs. Leo Eckhoff, current topics chairman, announced the speaker next week will be Randall Jessee, WDAF and WDAF-TV, Kansas City, who will talk on "I Live on Air."
